

Filter candles

Filter candles made of needle felt are often used in liquid filtration or to separate aerosols from gases.

Materials with high thicknesses are in application because they show a very good depth filtration.

We offer filter media with different degrees of separation. Depending on the required dimensions, these materials are built welded into filter candles. But also thinner materials can be processed into filter candles.

